CASE NO. 07cv1266-IEG(RBB)

Order Granting in Part and Denying in Part Defendants' Motion for Summary
Adjudication [Doc. No. 84]; Denying Plaintiff's Ex Parte Application for Continuance [Doc. No. 101]

Plaintiff Jessica Schroeder, by and through her parent and guardian Marina Laneri
Schroeder, has filed a complaint under 42 U.S.C. § 1983 against Defendants San Diego Unified School District ("District"), the Board of Education of the San Diego Unified School District ("Board), Kimberly Chambers, Michael Jimenez,, and Sue Skinner, alleging they violated her right to due process under the Fourteenth Amendment. Plaintiff also alleges a cause of action for 1 negligence against these Defendants. Plaintiff's claims arise out of a peer tutor's sexual abuse of 2 Jessica in the Spring of 2006, while she was a student in Ms. Chambers ILS classroom at Serra 3 High School within the District.

4 All Defendants move for summary adjudication of Plaintiff's claim under § 1983, as well 5 as her claim for punitive damages. Plaintiff has filed an opposition, and Defendants have filed a 6 reply. Along with her opposition, Plaintiff also filed an ex parte application for a continuance 7 under Fed. R. Civ. Proc. 56(f), to allow her an opportunity to conduct limited discovery regarding 8 the District's receipt of federal funds for special education programs. Defendant has filed an 9 opposition to that ex parte application.

10 Upon review of the materials, for the reasons explained herein, the Court GRANTS IN 11 PART AND DENIES IN PART Defendants' motion. In addition, the Court DENIES Plaintiff's ex 12 parte application for a continuance of the summary adjudication motion.

13 Procedural History

14 Plaintiff initially filed her complaint on July 12, 2007, alleging causes of action against the 15 District and Ms. Chambers under 42 U.S.C. § 1983, Title II of the Americans with Disabilities 16 Act, the California Unruh Civil Rights Act, and California Civil Code § 51.9, as well as 17 negligence. Plaintiff's mother, Marina Laneri Schroeder, asserted a claim for intentional infliction 18 of emotional distress against the District and Ms. Chambers. Plaintiff also alleged a claim for 19 battery against Fernando Ortiz, the student who sexually abused her, and alleged Fernando's 20 parents, Henry and Sylvia Ortiz, were vicariously liable for their son's actions.

21 Defendants Fernando, Henry, and Sylvia Ortiz filed answers to the complaint on 22 September 14, 2007. Defendants, the District and Ms. Chambers, moved to dismiss the complaint 23 for failure to state a claim pursuant to Fed. R. Civ. P. 12(b)(6). By order filed November 26, 2007, 24 the Court denied Defendants' motion.

25 On November 11, 2008, Plaintiff moved the Court for leave to file an amended complaint.
26 The Court granted that motion and on February 5, 2009, Plaintiff filed her amended complaint.
27 Plaintiff's amended complaint deleted all claims against Fernando, Henry, and Sylvia Ortiz, and 28 also deleted Marina Laneri Schroeder's individual claim. Plaintiff added two new Defendants,

1 Michael Jimenez and Sue Skinner. Plaintiff deleted all of her claims under the ADA and 2 California Civil Code, and alleged only claims under § 1983 as well as negligence.

3 Defendants now move for summary adjudication of Plaintiff's claim under § 1983 and her 4 claim for punitive damages.

5 Factual Background¹

6 At the time of the incident in the Spring of 2006, Jessica was an 18-year old severely 7 mentally retarded young woman with the functional ability of a young child. [Amended 8 Complaint, ¶ 3; Deposition of Lauren Basteyns ("Basteyns Depo."), Exhibit A to Plaintiff's Notice
9 of Lodgment ("NOL") in Support of Response to Motion for Summary Adjudication, 21:5-11; 10 Deposition of Kimberly Chambers ("Chambers Depo."), Exhibit B to NOL, 16:24-17:23.] Jessica 11 was a student in Kimberly Chambers' Integrated Life Skills ("ILS") class at Serra High School 12 within the District. [Chambers Depo., 16:8-13.] The purpose of this class is to teach students with 13 a low level of mental functioning certain basic skills, such as buying groceries and riding the bus, 14 so that they can function in society. [Deposition of Michael Jimenez ("Jimenez Depo."), Exhibit F
15 to NOL, 19:8-17.] Ms. Chambers, as the ILS teacher, was responsible for the personal safety 16 practices and procedures in that classroom. [Chambers Depo. 99:22-100:1.]

17 Fernando Ortiz, who was also a student at Serra High School, was first assigned to be a 18 "peer tutor" in Ms. Chambers' classroom in the fall semester of 2005. [Deposition of Susan 19 Skinner ("Skinner Depo."), Exhibit K to NOL, 50:21-51:7.] Ortiz had been suspended right after 20 school began in the fall of 2005 for making derogatory statements on MySpace about a special 21 education student.² [Id., 51:19-23; Jimenez Depo, 103:8-23.] Upon his return to school, Ortiz 22 attended a conference with his mother, school counselor Sue Skinner and vice-principal Michael

24 ¹Defendants, along with their reply, filed 11 pages containing more than 100 specific evidentiary objections to the Plaintiff's statements of fact and evidence in their opposition to the motion. The Court will not rule on each of these objections individually.

25 Many of Defendants' objections, such as lack of foundation and lack of relevance, are not well taken because 26 a proper foundation was laid at the time of the deposition. However, on numerous occasions throughout the statement of facts, Plaintiff's counsel argumentatively misstates testimony of the witnesses or cites portions of the record which 27 do not support the statement of fact. As a result, the Court relies in this order only upon those portions of Plaintiff's statement of facts which are supported by the underlying record of admissible evidence.

28 ²The boy about whom Ortiz made the purportedly derogatory statements was a "resource student," meaning he was a diploma bound student in regular classes who received some help in his classes. [Skinner Depo., 57:5-8.]

1 Jimenez. At that conference, Mr. Jimenez suggested Ortiz should serve as a peer tutor in the ILS 2 classroom so Ortiz would gain a greater understanding of how to help those who were not as 3 fortunate as him. [Skinner Depo., 53:1-57:15; Jimenez Depo., 104:3-105:12; Deposition of 4 Fernando Ortiz (“Ortiz Depo.”), Exhibit J to NOL, 32:1-33:22.] Everyone at the meeting agreed it
 5 would be a good idea, so Ms. Skinner physically made the change to Ortiz’s schedule, putting him
 6 in the ILS classroom as a peer tutor during sixth period. [Skinner Depo., 53:17-21, 57:20-58:2.] 7 Ortiz worked in the ILS room, where Plaintiff was a student, for only a week or two before he was 8 expelled for gambling at school. [Ortiz Depo., 40:8-13; 50:7-16; 153:17-22; Skinner Depo., 9 42:17-43:5.]

10 Ortiz returned to Serra High School for the spring semester of 2006. Ortiz asked Ms.
 11 Skinner if he would still be a peer tutor during sixth period, and she indicated it was necessary for 12 him to still be included in the peer tutor program. Therefore, Ortiz again became a peer tutor in 13 the ILS classroom. [Ortiz Depo., 157:3-20.]

14 Ortiz was in Ms. Chambers’ room acting as a peer tutor on the afternoon of April 17, 2006.
 15 [Chambers Depo., 100:12-13.] Along with Ms. Chambers, there were four additional adults
 16 present in the room, Carlos Long, Linde Forte, Sharon Webber, and Brenda Lucas. [Chambers
 17 Depo., 110:24-111:11.] There was also another student peer tutor present, Stephanie. [Chambers 18 Depo., 101:8-11.] Close to the end of the school day, Stephanie approached Ms. Chambers and 19 told her she saw Ortiz in class that day with Jessica’s hand on his “thighs and private parts” and 20 that she had seen it “a couple times.” [Chambers Depo., 107:10-24.] Stephanie reported later that 21 she saw Ortiz and Jessica sitting at a table, and Jessica was trying to complete a puzzle.
 22 [Declaration of Stephanie Legorreta (“Legorreta Decl.”), Exhibit Q to NOL, ¶ 8.] She saw Ortiz 23 unzip his pants, pull out his penis, and then reach over and take Jessica’s hand and place it on his 24 penis. [Id.] Ortiz moved Jessica’s hand up and down on his penis over a period of almost 30
 25 minutes. [Id.] Ortiz does not deny he sexually abused Jessica.³ [Ortiz Depo., 106:2-

26
 27 ³Ortiz disputes that the incident occurred on April 17. He recalls it occurred a couple weeks earlier, before 28 Spring break, around April 3 or so, and he believes Stephanie did not report it until later. [Ortiz Depo., 135:3-8.] Ortiz also states that there was a prior incident that may have been misinterpreted as abuse, where he had to scratch himself in his private area and Jessica mimicked the action. [Id., 124:7-20.] Plaintiff’s counsel repeatedly throughout his opposition brief and in oral argument states that there were numerous instances of abuse. This argumentative assertion

1 107:22.] Ortiz admits the abuse occurred while others were in the room engaging in a bowling
 2 activity, and that he had Jessica masturbate him a couple minutes at a time, off and on, over a 3 period of about 30 minutes. [Ortiz Depo., 110:1-113:2.] After Stephanie reported the incident to 4 Ms. Chambers, Ms. Chambers reported the incident to Mr. Jimenez. [Jimenez Depo., 125:25.]
 5 Mr. Jimenez interviewed Stephanie the next morning, and then called the school police. [Id., 6 126:7-15]. Ortiz was arrested and charged.

7 Prior to being chosen as a peer tutor, and in addition to his suspension related to the 8 MySpace content, Ortiz had incurred a number of disciplinary infractions while a high school 9 student⁴ in the District. During his ninth grade year, Ortiz was disciplined for cheating, “illegal 10 activity,” fighting, disturbing his class, making threats against another student and being 11 argumentative. [Declaration of Fernando Ortiz (“Ortiz Decl.”), Exhibit P to NOL, ¶ 5; San Diego
 12 Unified School District Disciplinary Record Document Summary (“Disciplinary Record”)⁵, 13 Exhibit R5 to NOL, entries 7-12.] In the tenth grade, Ortiz was suspended on one occasion for 14 sexually harassing two girls on a school bus⁶ and on another occasion for having beer at school 15 [Disciplinary Record, entries 13 and 14.] Ortiz was also later expelled from school for selling 16 bottles of alcohol on the school campus, conduct for which he was arrested. [Ortiz Depo., 24:7-17 19.] Ortiz was later readmitted to school, however, because Serra High School did not have a 18 representative attend the expulsion hearing. [Id., 23:10-24:6.] Ortiz was again suspended in the 19 tenth grade for breaking into his teacher’s computer and changing his grades. [Disciplinary 20 Record, entries 15 and 16; Ortiz Depo., 150:14-17; Chambers Depo., 92:25-93:3.] Ortiz was also

21 _____
 22 is not supported by the evidence submitted in opposition to Defendants’ motion.

23 ⁴Plaintiff also includes in her recitation of facts information about discipline Ortiz incurred in elementary and 24 middle school. The Court considers those incidents too remote in time and irrelevant as there is no evidence that any of 25 the Defendants would have had access to those disciplinary records at the time Ortiz was placed in the ILS classroom as a peer tutor.

26 ⁵Defendants object to the Plaintiff’s reliance on this document, arguing it is inadmissible hearsay. The 27 summary document itself was prepared by Plaintiff’s counsel prior to depositions. Attached to that document, however, 28 are the underlying disciplinary reports. The Court assumes Plaintiff can lay a proper foundation establishing this document’s admissibility under Fed. R. Evid. 1006, and the underlying documents are admissible under the business records exception.

⁶Ortiz denies harassing the girls. [Ortiz Depo., 149:7-150:1.]

1 suspended a couple of times his junior year for fighting at school and for stealing chemicals from 2 the chemistry lab. [Ortiz Depo., 150:24-151:4.]

3 At his deposition, Ortiz testified that he received little training regarding how to work with 4 Jessica in the ILS classroom. [Ortiz Depo 55:2-56:4.] Ortiz and the other peer tutors were “quite 5 often” left alone in the ILS classroom with Jessica and other special needs students without any 6 adult in the room. [Ortiz Depo. 57:4-23; 58:8-9.] On at least two occasions, Ortiz was left alone in 7 the classroom with Jessica and another ILS student with no one else present. [Ortiz Depo. 58:20-8 25.] Ortiz testified Ms. Chambers provided very little supervision to him throughout the Spring
9 semester. [Ortiz Depo. 60:8-61:2; 70:10-15.] For example, Ortiz frequently left the classroom
10 with another ILS student, Kyle, during which time he would go smoke marijuana on school
11 grounds. [Ortiz Depo. 67:20-68:9.]

12 At the time school officials made the decision to place Ortiz in the ILS classroom as 13 discipline for his derogatory MySpace comments, Mr. Jimenez was “familiar with what [Ortiz] 14 had done at Serra High School in terms of getting involved in inappropriate behavior.” [Jimenez 15 Depo. 107:5-7.] Mr. Jimenez was not aware Ortiz had a prior incident of sexual harassment while 16 at Serra High School. [Id. 108:1-12.] Mr. Jimenez had access to Ortiz’s entire disciplinary history 17 with the District through his computer, but did not look at that information before he decided to 18 place Ortiz in the ILS classroom. [Id. 106:20-22,108:6-111:19.]

19 At the time she participated in the decision to place Ortiz in the ILS classroom as a peer 20 tutor, and when she made the change to Ortiz’s schedule, Ms. Skinner did not know of Ortiz’s 21 prior incident of sexual harassment while at Serra High School, or much of anything about Ortiz’s
22 disciplinary history. [Skinner Depo., 54:13-16.] Ms. Skinner had access to the school district’s 23 computer system containing disciplinary records. [Id. 14:14-15:13.] Through that system she 24 could query regarding a student’s disciplinary history for the current year, but she would have to 25 request someone else obtain information regarding prior years. [Id.] Ms. Skinner did not do any 26 investigation regarding Ortiz’s disciplinary background prior to changing Ortiz’s schedule to put 27 him in the ILS classroom, or prior to placing him back in the classroom when he returned from 28 suspension at the beginning of the spring semester. [Id. 55:5-8.]

1 Ms. Chambers was in charge of the peer tutor program in the ILS classroom in the spring 2 semester of 2006. [Skinner Depo. 40:21-25.] As the ILS teacher, Ms. Chambers had an 3 opportunity to veto the decision to place Ortiz in her classroom as a peer tutor or request a check 4 of his disciplinary history. [Skinner Depo. 55:19-56:3.] At the time Ortiz was assigned to Ms.
5 Chambers' ILS classroom as a peer tutor, Ms. Chambers did not know anything about his 6 disciplinary history except that he was returning to school after having been suspended.
7 [Chambers Depo. 73:6-75:4; 84:11-85:15.] At the time of her deposition, Ms. Chambers was 8 shocked to learn of Ortiz's disciplinary history. Ms. Chambers believed it would have been 9 helpful if she had the information when Ortiz began working in her classroom. [Chambers Depo.
10 85:13-25; 95:9-96:14.]

11 Ex Parte Application for Continuance

12 As an initial matter, Plaintiff's counsel requests a continuance of the summary adjudication 13 motion under Fed. R. Civ. Proc. 56(f) to allow him to conduct additional discovery regarding the 14 District's receipt of federal funds for special education. In particular, in his opposition to the 15 Defendants' motion, Plaintiff implies the District's receipt of federal special education funding 16 could act as a waiver of Eleventh Amendment immunity. Plaintiff argues the Defendants failed to 17 raise the immunity defense in their answer, such that when they did assert it in the summary 18 adjudication motion, he was unable to conduct discovery in a timely manner to address the 19 immunity issue.

20 As explained in detail below in the discussion of Defendants' Eleventh Amendment 21 immunity, Plaintiff in this case has not alleged any cause of action under any federal statute which 22 conditions the receipt of federal special education funds upon a waiver of the state agency's 23 sovereign immunity. Thus, as a matter of law as explained below, regardless of whether the 24 District received federal funds under the IDEA (the particular statute the Plaintiff identifies in his 25 application), receipt of such funds would not act as a waiver of the Defendants' immunity in this 26 case. Therefore, the Court DENIES Plaintiff's ex parte application to continue this motion to 27 permit additional discovery.
28

Summary Adjudication Standard

Pursuant to Fed. R. Civ. Proc. 56(a), a party may move for summary adjudication on less than all of the claims in the case. Summary judgment is appropriate on a particular claim where the pleadings and other evidence show “that there is no genuine issue as to any material fact and that the movant is entitled to judgment as a matter of law.” Fed. R. Civ. Proc. 56(c); Celotex Corp. v. Catrett, 477 U.S. 317, 322 (1986). A material issue of fact is a question the trier of fact must answer to determine the rights of the parties under the applicable substantive law. Anderson v. Liberty Lobby, Inc., 477 U.S. 242, 248 (1986).

A dispute is genuine “if the evidence is such that a reasonable jury could return a verdict for the nonmoving party.” Id. at 248. Summary judgment may be granted in favor of a defendant on an ultimate issue of fact where the defendant carries its burden of “pointing out to the district court that there is an absence of evidence to support the nonmoving party’s case.” Celotex, 477 U.S. at 325; see Nissan Fire & Marine Ins. Co. v. Fritz Cos., 210 F.3d 1099, 1106 (9th Cir. 2000).

The moving party bears “the initial responsibility of informing the district court of the basis for its motion.” Celotex, 477 U.S. at 323. To satisfy this burden, the moving party must demonstrate that no genuine issue of material fact exists for trial. Id. at 322. However, the moving party is not required to negate those portions of the non-moving party’s claim on which the non-moving party bears the burden of proof. Id. at 323. To withstand a motion for summary judgment, the non-movant must then show that there are genuine factual issues which can only be resolved by the trier of fact. Reese v. Jefferson Sch. Dist. No. 14J, 208 F.3d 736, 738 (9th Cir. 2000) (citing Fed. R. Civ. P. 56; Celotex, 477 U.S. at 323).

The nonmoving party may not rely on the pleadings but must present specific facts creating a genuine issue of material fact. Nissan Fire, 210 F.3d at 1103. The inferences to be drawn from the facts must be viewed in a light most favorable to the party opposing the motion, but conclusory allegations as to ultimate facts are not adequate to defeat summary judgment. Gibson v. County of Washoe, Nev., 290 F.3d 1175, 1180 (9th Cir. 2002). The Court is not required “to scour the record in search of a genuine issue of triable fact,” Keenan v. Allan, 91 F.3d 1275, 1279 (9th Cir. 1996), but rather “may limit its review to the documents submitted for purposes of summary judgment

1 and those parts of the record specifically referenced therein.” Carmen v. San Francisco Unified 2 Sch. Dist., 237 F.3d 1026, 1030 (9th Cir. 2001).

3 Discussion

4 Defendants seek summary adjudication of Plaintiff’s cause of action under 42 5 U.S.C. § 1983 as well as Plaintiff’s claim for punitive damages. Defendants argue (1) the District, 6 Board, and individuals to the extent they are sued in their official capacities, are immune from 7 liability under the Eleventh Amendment; (2) Plaintiff cannot show Defendants violated her 8 constitutional rights; and (3) Plaintiff’s claim for punitive damages fails as a matter of law.

9 I. Eleventh Amendment Immunity

10 Broadly speaking, the Eleventh Amendment to the United States Constitution bars suits for 11 damages in federal court against a non-consenting State. Kimel v. Florida Board of Regents, 528 12 U.S. 62, 73 (2000). This immunity applies both to the state itself and to its agencies. Belanger v.
 13 Madera Unified School Dist., 963 F.2d 248, 250 (9th Cir. 1992). The determination of whether a 14 particular public entity is entitled “to be treated as an arm of the State partaking of the State’s 15 Eleventh Amendment immunity, or is instead to be treated as ... [an] other political subdivision to 16 which the Eleventh Amendment does not extend” turns upon a number of factors. Beentjes v.
 17 Placer County Air Pollution Control Dist., 397 F.3d 775, 777-78 (9th Cir. 2005) (quoting Mt.
 18 Healthy City Sch. Dist. Bd. of Educ. v. Doyle, 429 U.S. 274, 280 (1977)). The following five 19 factors are considered in the Ninth Circuit to determine whether an entity is an arm of the state:

20 (1) whether a money judgment would be satisfied out of state funds, (2) whether the 21 entity performs central governmental functions, (3) whether the entity may sue or 22 be sued, (4) whether the entity has the power to take property in its own name or only the name of the state, and (5) the corporate status of the entity.

23 Beentjes, 397 F.3d at 778 (quoting Belanger, 963 F.2d at 250-51).

24 After considering the above five factors, the Ninth Circuit has explicitly held that school 25 districts and school officials sued in their official capacity within the state of California are 26 immune from suit under the Eleventh Amendment. Belanger, 963 F.2d at 254; Cole v. Oroville 27 Union High School Dist., 228 F.3d 1092, 1100 n.4 (9th Cir. 2000); Stoner v. Santa Clara County 28 Office of Education, 502 F.3d 1116, 1122 (9th Cir. 2007) (declining to revisit Belanger’s holding that a school district is a state agency for Eleventh Amendment purposes in light of subsequent Supreme Court authority). As a result, absent a waiver, Defendants San Diego Unified School District, San Diego Unified Board of Education, and Defendants Kimberly Chambers, Michael Jimenez, and Sue Skinner are immune from liability for damages insofar as they are sued in their official capacities.

Plaintiff argues Defendants have waived their immunity by (a) failing to timely assert it in this action and instead engaging in extensive litigation, and (b) accepting federal funds for special education programs. Both of these arguments fail.

a. Failure to timely assert immunity

Plaintiff argues Defendants waived their immunity under the Eleventh Amendment by failing to assert this defense in its answer and thereafter engaging in extensive litigation on the merits of the case. “A waiver of Eleventh Amendment immunity must unequivocally evidence the state’s intention to subject itself to the jurisdiction of the federal court.” Hill v. Blind Industries and Services, 179 F.3d 754, 758 (9th Cir. 1999). Although a waiver must be unambiguous, there is no requirement the waiver be express or written. Id. “[A] state may waive its Eleventh Amendment immunity by conduct that is incompatible with an intent to preserve that immunity.” Id. Eleventh Amendment immunity is more appropriately considered an affirmative defense, rather than a jurisdictional bar, and the burden is upon the party invoking the immunity to assert and prove those matters necessary to establish the defense. Douglas v. California Dept. of Youth Authority, 271 F.3d 812, 821 (9th Cir. 2001); ITSI T.V. Productions, Inc. v. Agricultural Assn., 3 F.3d 1289, 1291 (9th Cir. 1991).⁷

For example, in Hill, the state agency appeared, actively litigated the case on its merits, and waited until the opening day of trial to first assert immunity under the Eleventh Amendment. The court held the agency waived its immunity, noting “[t]he Eleventh Amendment was never intended to allow a state to appear in federal court and actively litigate the case on the merits, and only later belatedly assert its immunity from suit in order to avoid an adverse result.” Similarly, in Douglas, 271 F.3d at 821, the state agency did not raise the Eleventh Amendment defense before the district

⁷Plaintiff cites ITSI TV Productions, Inc. for the proposition the Eleventh Amendment immunity is waived if not asserted as an affirmative defense in a defendant’s answer. Neither that case, nor any of other cases cited by Plaintiff, impose such a standard for determining whether a party has waived its Eleventh Amendment immunity.

1 court, nor did it raise the defense in its opening appellate brief. The Ninth Circuit refused to allow 2 the agency to assert the defense for the first time on appeal, instead remanding to the district court 3 to determine based upon the factual record whether the agency waived its immunity.

4 In its answer to Plaintiff's original complaint in this case, the District asserted as its third 5 affirmative defense that "it is entitled to statutory immunity from liability." In addition, Ms.
 6 Chambers asserted that she was "entitled to absolute and discretionary immunity because she is, 7 and at all pertinent times was, a public entity employee." The District and Ms. Chambers again 8 asserted these affirmative defenses in Defendants' answer to the amended complaint, which 9 counsel filed on March 2, 2009. [Answer to amended complaint, ¶ 81.] The Board, Mr. Jimenez, 10 and Ms. Skinner, who were added to the case with Plaintiff's filing of the amended complaint on 11 February 5, 2009, did not assert any immunity from liability in the answer. However, counsel filed 12 this motion four days later on March 6, 2009.

13 The Ninth Circuit has stressed that "a state does not waive Eleventh Amendment immunity 14 merely by defending in federal court. Instead, waiver turns on the state's failure to raise immunity 15 during the litigation." Demshki v. Monteith, 255 F.3d 986, 989 (9th Cir. 2001). In this case, the 16 District and Ms. Chambers asserted immunity from suit in their answer. The Board and remaining 17 individual Defendants asserted the defense in the current motion, which counsel filed four days 18 after filing their answer to the amended complaint, and prior to the time when all discovery was 19 ordered to be completed.⁸ The Defendants' conduct has not been "incompatible with an intent to 20 preserve that immunity." Hill, 179 F.3d at 758.

21 b. Acceptance of federal special education funds

22 Alternatively, Plaintiff argues the District and its employees waived Eleventh Amendment 23 immunity by accepting federal funds under the IDEA pertaining to special education student 24 instruction. "Congress may abrogate the States' constitutionally secured immunity from suit in 25 federal court only by making its intention unmistakably clear in the language of the statute."
 26 Kimel, 528 U.S. at 73. Where authorized under a valid grant of constitutional authority, Congress

27
 28 ⁸Upon joint request by the parties, Magistrate Judge Brooks extended the discovery cut-off from February 12, 2009 to March 16, 2009.

1 may condition a state's acceptance of federal funds upon the state's waiver of Eleventh 2 Amendment immunity to suit. Board of Trustees v. Garrett, 531 U.S. 356, 363-64 (2001).
 3 Congress's abrogation of the States' Eleventh Amendment immunity must be unequivocal. Id.

4 Congress has unequivocally, and under a valid grant of constitutional authority, subjected 5 states to suit in federal court under the Rehabilitation Act if they accept federal Rehabilitation Act 6 funds. Douglas, 271 F.3d at 819. Similarly, Congress has unequivocally abrogated a state's 7 sovereign immunity for claims brought under the Individuals with Disabilities in Education Act 8 ("IDEA") where the state has accepted federal funds for IDEA programs. Board of Education v.
 9 Schutz, 290 F.3d 476, 480 (2d Cir. 2002). Nothing within either of those Acts, however, abrogates 10 a state's immunity with regard to actions brought under 42 U.S.C. § 1983. See 20 U.S.C.
 11 § 1403(a) ("[a] State shall not be immune under the 11th amendment to the Constitution of the 12 United States from suit in Federal court for a violation of this chapter"); 42 U.S.C. § 2000d-7 ("[a] 13 State shall not be immune under the Eleventh Amendment of the Constitution of the United States
 14 from suit in Federal court for a violation [of this Act]."

15 Plaintiff cites two cases in support of her argument that the District's acceptance of funds 16 under the IDEA waived its Eleventh Amendment immunity to suit under § 1983, M.A. v. State 17 Operated School District, 344 F.3d 335, 344-45, fn.9 (3d Cir. 2003) and J.R. v. Waterbury Board 18 of Education, 272 F. Supp. 2d 174 (D. Conn. 2001). Neither of these cases, however, are 19 controlling or persuasive. The IDEA provides a private cause of action only for prospective relief 20 in the form of a free and appropriate public education. Mark H. v. Lemahieu, 513 F.3d 922, 930 21 (9th Cir. 2008). As a result, any action for damages for violation of the IDEA must be brought 22 under another statutory provision, such as the Rehabilitation Act or 42 U.S.C. § 1983. Id. at 930.
 23 In both the M.A. and J.R. cases, the plaintiff's claim under 42 U.S.C. § 1983 was based wholly 24 and completely upon the defendants' violation of the provisions of the IDEA. M.A., 344 F.3d at 25 342; J.R., 72 F. Supp. 2d at 178. Thus, the waiver of immunity under the IDEA acted as a waiver 26 of liability to suit for damages under § 1983 for an action based upon a violation of the IDEA.

27 By contrast, Plaintiff's action under 42 U.S.C. § 1983 in this case is not based upon any 28 violation of the IDEA or any other statute in which Congress found it appropriate to abrogate a

1 state's sovereign immunity in exchange for receipt of federal special education funds. Plaintiff
 2 alleges the Defendants violated her rights under the Due Process Clause of the Fourteenth 3 Amendment. The Ninth Circuit has held that California has not waived its Eleventh Amendment 4 immunity with respect to claims brought under 42 U.S.C. § 1983. Brown v. California Dep't of 5 Corrections, 554 F.3d 747, 752 (9th Cir. 2009) (finding state board immune from suit under 42 6 U.S.C. § 1983 absent waiver).

7 The Court finds the District, the Board, and the Individual Defendants only to the extent 8 they are sued in their official capacities⁹ are immune under the Eleventh Amendment from liability 9 for damages on Plaintiff's claim under 42 U.S.C. § 1983. Thus, the Court GRANTS the motion 10 for summary adjudication as to Plaintiff's claims against these Defendants.

11 2. Violation of Constitutional Rights

12 Defendants argue that the Ninth Circuit has never recognized a cause of action against 13 school officials under § 1983 based upon student-to-student sexual assault, and that the facts of 14 this case do not demonstrate Defendants violated Plaintiff's constitutional rights.¹⁰

15 The Due Process Clause does not impose an affirmative duty upon the state to protect its 16 citizens against the acts of private third parties. Johnson v. City of Seattle, 474 F.3d 634, 639 (9th 17 Cir. 2007). As a result, a governmental entity's failure to protect an individual from harm at the 18 hands of a private party generally does not constitute a violation of the Due Process Clause.
 19 DeShaney v. Winnebago Co. Dep't of Soc. Servs., 489 U.S. 189 (1989); Johnson, 474 F.3d at 639.
 20 There are two exceptions to the general rule announced in DeShaney – the “special relationship” 21 exception and the “danger creation” exception. Id. The “special relationship” exception applies 22 where the “government enters into a special relationship with a party, such as taking the party into 23 custody or placing him into involuntary hospitalization.” Morgan v. Gonzales, 495 F.3d 1084, 24 1093-94 (9th Cir. 2007). Under the “danger creation” exception, “a plaintiff must first show that 25 ‘the state action affirmatively place[s] the plaintiff in a position of danger,’ that is, where state

26
 27 ⁹In opposition, Plaintiff argues the individual Defendants are not immune from liability under § 1983 to the 28 extent they are sued in their individual capacities. Hafer v. Melo, 502 U.S. 21 (1991). Defendants do not dispute this well-established legal point.

¹⁰Defendants do not assert they are entitled to qualified immunity.

1 action creates or exposes an individual to a danger he or she would not have otherwise faced.”

2 Johnson, 474 F.3d at 639; see also Kennedy, 439 F.3d at 1062.

3 This Court recognized, at the time of Defendants’ motion to dismiss, that Plaintiff did not 4 allege sufficient facts to establish a “special relationship.” [Doc. No. 26, p.7.] Plaintiff did not re-5 allege this aspect of her due process claim in the amended complaint. Thus, the question at this 6 time is whether there are genuine issues of material fact precluding summary adjudication of 7 Plaintiff’s claim that Defendants “affirmatively placed” her in a “position of danger.” The Ninth 8 Circuit has held that “state actors may be held liable ‘where they affirmatively place an individual 9 in danger’ . . . by acting with “deliberate indifference to [a] known or obvious danger in subjecting 10 the plaintiff to it.” Kennedy, 439 F.3d at 1062 (citing Munger v. City of Glasgow, 227 F.3d 1082, 11 1086 (9th Cir. 2000) and L.W. v. Grubbs, 92 F.3d 894, 900 (9th Cir.1996)). A plaintiff must show 12 “state action creates or expose[d] [the individual] to a danger which he or she would not have 13 otherwise faced.” Johnson, 474 F.3d at 639. The Plaintiffs must also demonstrate the danger to 14 which Defendants exposed Jessica was “known or obvious” and that Defendants “acted with 15 deliberate indifference to it.” Kennedy, 439 F.3d at 1064.

16 a. Case law on “danger creation” exception

17 Although the Ninth Circuit has never applied the “danger creation” exception to a case 18 alleging student-to-student sexual abuse, other Ninth Circuit case law helps to define the scope of 19 the due process right involved in this case. In Wood v. Ostrander, 879 F.2d 583 (9th Cir. 1989), a 20 police officer arrested a drunk driver and impounded the driver’s car at 2:30 a.m. The officer 21 drove away and left plaintiff, who had been a passenger in the car, alone in an area with a very 22 high rate of aggravated crime. Plaintiff accepted a ride from a stranger who drove her to a secluded 23 area and raped her. Plaintiff sued the police officer. The Ninth Circuit held the plaintiff sufficiently 24 alleged the officer “acted in callous disregard for [her] physical security, a liberty interest 25 protected by the Constitution.” Id. at 589. Thus, the court found plaintiff raised a triable issue of 26 fact as to whether the officer’s conduct “affirmatively placed [her] in a position of danger.” Id. at 27 589-90.

28 In L.W. v. Grubbs, 974 F.2d 119 (9th Cir. 1992), plaintiff was a prison nurse at a medium

1 security custodial institution for young male offenders. Plaintiff's supervisors led plaintiff to 2 believe she would not be required to work alone with violent sex offenders. They then assigned 3 her to work alone with an inmate who was a known "violent sex offender" who had "failed all 4 treatment programs" and who was "considered very likely to commit a violent crime if placed 5 alone with a female." Id. at 120. The inmate assaulted, battered, kidnapped, and raped plaintiff.
6 The Ninth Circuit found that the defendants used their authority as state correctional officers to 7 affirmatively create the dangerous situation by putting her alone with an inmate who had an 8 extraordinary history of "unrepentant violence against women and girls." Id. at 121. Thus, the 9 court held plaintiff could proceed against defendants under the "danger creation" theory. Id. at 10 122.

11 In Penilla v. City of Huntington Park, 115 F.3d 707 (9th Cir. 1997), police officers locked a 12 seriously ill person in his home and canceled a 911 call. Family members found him dead the next 13 day. Id. at 709-11. Again, the Ninth Circuit found the defendant officers "took affirmative actions 14 that significantly increased the risk facing" the deceased after they examined him and found him to 15 be in serious medical need. Id. at 710.

16 In Kennedy, the plaintiff told a police officer that a neighbor (a 13-year-old boy) had 17 molested her 9-year-old daughter. 439 F.3d at 1057-58. The plaintiff also told the officer initially 18 and on several subsequent occasions that the neighbor boy had alarming violent tendencies, and 19 asked that she be given notice prior to any police contact with the neighbor's family. Nonetheless, 20 the officer did not notify the plaintiff or her family before he contacted the boy's mother. The 21 officer did notify the plaintiff approximately 15 minutes later, but assured plaintiff that police 22 would patrol the neighborhood that night and she and her family would be safe. The neighbor boy 23 broke into plaintiff's home that night, shot and killed plaintiff's husband, and shot and severely 24 wounded plaintiff. The district court denied defendant's motion for summary judgment on 25 qualified immunity, and the Ninth Circuit affirmed. The Ninth Circuit found that because the 26 defendant officer knew of the neighbor's violent tendencies, failed to notify plaintiff before he 27 contacted the neighbor, and then misrepresented to the plaintiff the risk they faced if they 28 remained at home, the officer "affirmatively created an actual, particularized danger [plaintiff]

1 would not otherwise have faced.” Id. at 1063. The court further found that the danger to which 2 the defendant officer exposed plaintiff was “known or obvious” and the officer “acted with 3 deliberate indifference to it.” Id. at 1064-65.

4 Finally, in Johnson, the plaintiffs attended a Mardi Gras celebration at which several riots
5 broke out. 474 F.3d at 636. The police chief ordered police to remain on the crowd’s periphery 6 because he believed inserting officers into the hostile crowd would incite greater violence. The 7 plaintiffs were assaulted in the crowd while police remained on the periphery. The district court
8 granted summary judgment on plaintiffs’ claims against the defendants and the Ninth Circuit 9 affirmed. In contrast to Wood, Grubbs, Penilla, and Kennedy, the court found the plaintiffs had 10 failed to offer any evidence “that the Defendants engaged in affirmative conduct that enhanced the 11 dangers the Pioneer Square Plaintiffs exposed themselves to by participating in the Mardi Gras 12 celebration.” Id. at 641.

13 Defendants in their motion rely heavily upon an unpublished decision out of the District of 14 Oregon, Morgan v. Bend-La Pine School Dist., 2009 WL 312423 (D. Or. Feb. 6, 2009), a case 15 which involved student-to-student sexual abuse. In Morgan, the plaintiff brought an action as 16 guardian ad litem on behalf of her daughter, who school district officials placed at an alternative 17 middle school when she was in seventh grade. Plaintiff was placed at the alternative school after 18 an Individualized Education Plan (“IEP”) Team determined she required additional support for her 19 identified disabilities which included ADHD, emotional disturbance, communication disorder, and 20 other health impairments such as muscular dystrophy and severe arthritis. Id. at *2. Plaintiff was 21 later diagnosed with Autism Spectrum Disorder. Id. at *3.

22 Plaintiff alleged she was particularly susceptible to sexual abuse because she suffered from 23 a disability. In one IEP, her teacher stated that plaintiff did “not understand the social nuances that 24 surround[ed] her, which could easily lead to her becoming a target of more socially ‘aware’ 25 peers.” Id. at *3. At the time she was placed at the alternative school, she was the only female 26 student out of a total of 21 students. Sometime later two other girls began attending the school, 27 both of whom were younger than plaintiff. Id. at *4. The student population at the school was 28 “very difficult” and included students with histories of violent, acting-out behaviors as well as 1 some students with a history of sexual abuse or who were documented sexual offenders. Id. at *3.

2 While she was a 14-year-old eighth grade student, plaintiff engaged in several instances of 3 sexually charged conduct with male fellow students while on overnight school trips. Id. at *4-5.

4 Although school officials learned of one “flashing” incident, they did not notify plaintiff’s parents.
5 Id. at *5. School officials recommended plaintiff be retained at the school for another year, in part 6 due to her need to learn a set of skills to manage her emerging sexuality. Id. Plaintiff, therefore, 7 remained at the alternative school for a second year of eighth grade.

8 During her second eighth grade year, there were three more sexually charged incidents 9 about which school officials learned. However, school officials believed there was no “touching” 10 involved in any of the incidents, and also believed there was no force or coercion involved.
11 Therefore, they again did not contact plaintiff’s parents. Finally, plaintiff told her parents that on 12 one of the school trips she had masterbated one of the male students, and that on another trip a 13 male student grabbed her crotch. Plaintiff’s parents withdrew her from the school the next day and 14 thereafter filed suit.

15 Defendants moved for summary judgment arguing plaintiff could not show a due process 16 violation. In granting defendants’ motion, the court noted “[n]o Ninth Circuit case has allowed a 17 substantive due process claim premised on a violation of the right to bodily integrity arising out of 18 the failure of teachers or a school district to detect and prevent student-to-student sexual 19 harassment in a public school.” Id. at *10. The court started with the legal standard for the 20 “danger creation” exception set forth in Kennedy and Grubbs. Id. The court then stated, however, 21 that “[t]he ultimate inquiry in any substantive due process case is whether the ‘behavior of the 22 governmental officer is so egregious, so outrageous, that it may fairly be said to shock the 23 contemporary conscience’ or ‘interferes with rights’ implicit in the concept of ordered liberty.” Id.
24 at *11 (quoting County of Sacramento v. Lewis, 523 U.S. 833, 847 (1998)). The court went on to 25 find that the plaintiff must demonstrate “conduct intended to injure in some way unjustifiable by 26 any government interest [which] is the sort of official action most likely to rise to the conscience-27 shocking level.” Id. (citing Porter v. Osborn, 546 F.3d 1131, 1137 (9th Cir. 2008)). The court 28 found none of the facts alleged by plaintiff rose to the “conscience-shocking level,” and thus 1 granted summary judgment.

2 Defendants argue the facts of Morgan are almost identical to those in this case, and urge 3 this Court to apply the “shocks the conscience” standard articulated in Morgan to the facts of this 4 case to grant summary judgment on Plaintiff’s § 1983 claim. The Oregon court, however, 5 misstates the standard applicable where a plaintiff alleges a violation of due process under the 6 “danger creation” exception. The standard for determining whether a plaintiff has stated a due 7 process violation under the “danger creation” theory is set forth in the Ninth Circuit cases cited
 8 above, including Kennedy, Grubbs, and Johnson. The Ninth Circuit in Kennedy expressly rejected 9 the proposition that a plaintiff alleging a due process violation under the “danger creation” theory 10 must meet a “shocks the conscience” standard. 439 F.3d at 1064-65. Therefore, the Court will not 11 apply a “conscience-shocking” standard as the court did in Morgan.

12 b. Application of the law to the facts of this case

13 The questions raised by Plaintiff’s § 1983 claim in this case are (i) whether the 14 Defendants¹¹ affirmatively placed Plaintiff in a position of danger, (ii) whether the danger to which 15 Defendants exposed Plaintiff was known or obvious, and (iii) whether Defendants acted with 16 deliberate indifference to that risk. Kennedy, 439 F.3d at 1062-63, 1064.

17 i. Did the Defendants affirmatively place Plaintiff in a position of danger?

18 Defendants argue there is no evidence demonstrating the Defendants “affirmatively placed 19 Plaintiff in a position of danger.” The question is whether Defendants took “any affirmative 20 actions ... [which] placed [Jessica] in danger that she otherwise would not have faced.” Kennedy, 21 439 F.3d at 1062.

22 The Court finds that the facts, viewed in the light most favorable to Plaintiff, could be 23 construed so as to establish all Defendants affirmatively placed Plaintiff in a position of danger.
 24 Defendants Mr. Jiminez and Ms. Skinner made the decision to place Ortiz as a peer tutor in the 26 ¹¹In opposition to the Defendants’ motion, Plaintiff argues Ortiz himself was a state actor because he was 27 acting as an agent on behalf of the school. The Court doubts Plaintiff could demonstrate Ortiz was a “state actor” for 28 purposes of 42 U.S.C. § 1983. See Sutton v. Providence St. Joseph Medical Ctr., 192 F.3d 826, 835-36 (9th Cir. 1999) (discussing the factors federal courts use to determine when a private party is acting under “color of state law” for purposes of § 1983). Nonetheless, Plaintiff amended her complaint to delete all claims against Ortiz, and Plaintiff cannot now attempt to establish liability under § 1983 against him personally.

1 ILS classroom as discipline for making derogatory comments directed toward another student on 2 MySpace, and Defendant Ms. Skinner physically made the change to Ortiz's schedule. In 3 addition, when Ortiz returned to Serra High School for the spring 2006 semester, after he had been 4 suspended for gambling, Ms. Skinner affirmatively placed Ortiz back in the ILS classroom as a 5 peer tutor. Ortiz would not have been in the ILS classroom except for the affirmative actions of 6 Mr. Jiminez and Ms. Skinner to place him there as a peer tutor.

7 Furthermore, Defendant Ms. Chambers allowed Ortiz to work with Plaintiff despite her 8 knowledge that Jessica, like all the ILS students, was particularly vulnerable to sexual abuse.¹² In 9 a meeting on March 31, 2006, Plaintiff's mother expressed concern to Ms. Chambers about male 10 tutors working with her daughters and specifically told Ms. Chambers that she did not want that 11 happening any more. [Chambers Depo., 127:7-12.] Nonetheless, Defendant Ms. Chambers 12 continued to allow Ortiz to work with Jessica in the ILS classroom, thus affirmatively placing 13 Jessica in a position of danger.

14 ii. Was the Danger to Plaintiff Known or Obvious to Defendants?

15 None of the Defendants knew Ortiz had been previously disciplined for sexual harassment.
 16 Therefore, Defendants argue the risk to Plaintiff of having Ortiz work as a peer tutor in the ILS 17 classroom was neither known nor obvious. Defendants take too narrow a view of the evidence in 18 this case.

19 In order to establish Defendants knew or should have known they were making Plaintiff 20 vulnerable to danger by placing Ortiz in the ILS classroom as a peer tutor, it is not necessary that 21 Defendants foresaw the specific injury Ortiz inflicted upon Plaintiff. Kennedy, 439 F.3d at 1064 22 fn.5 (where officer knew neighbor had alarming, violent tendencies, court found plaintiff need not 23 demonstrate officer knew neighbor would shoot and kill plaintiff's husband); Wood, 879 F.2d at 24 590 (where officer left plaintiff alone in a high crime area in the middle of the night, court found 25 plaintiff did not need to demonstrate the officer knew she would be raped). All of the Defendants 26 knew Plaintiff was particularly vulnerable to sexual abuse and would be unable to defend herself

27
 28 ¹²Plaintiff's argumentative statement that Ms. Chambers had "duty to screen each tutor" [Opposition Brief, p. 12, ¶ 55] is not supported by the evidence of record cited by Plaintiff.

1 against or report such abuse. Against the backdrop of such knowledge, and knowing that Ortiz 2 had a significant disciplinary history which included fighting, making threats against another 3 student, and sexual harassment, Defendant Mr. Jiminez recommended that Ortiz be made a peer 4 tutor in the ILS classroom. The Court finds the evidence viewed in the light most favorable to 5 Plaintiff raises a genuine issue of material fact as to whether Defendant Mr. Jiminez knew or 6 should have known he was making Plaintiff vulnerable to danger by placing Ortiz in the ILS 7 classroom as a peer tutor.

8 Although Defendant Ms. Skinner was not as familiar with Ortiz's disciplinary history as 9 Defendant Mr. Jiminez, the facts viewed in the light most favorable to Plaintiff indicate Ms.
10 Skinner was present during Ortiz's post-suspension meeting in the fall of 2005, and participated in 11 the decision to put Ortiz in the ILS classroom. During that meeting, Mr. Jiminez warned Ortiz that 12 he would be expelled and unable to return to school if he incurred another disciplinary infraction.
13 This warning should have put Ms. Skinner on notice that before she made the change to Ortiz's 14 schedule she should look at his disciplinary history to insure it was an appropriate placement.
15 Furthermore, Ms. Skinner knew Ortiz was again suspended from Serra High School, only about a 16 week after this meeting, and returned to the school in the spring semester of 2006. Despite this 17 knowledge, Ms. Skinner made sure Ortiz's schedule, when he returned to school, once again 18 included him as a peer tutor in the ILS classroom. The Court finds such facts create a genuine 19 issue of material fact as to whether Defendant Ms. Skinner knew or should have known Ortiz 20 would be a danger to Plaintiff.

21 Finally, it is undisputed that Defendant Ms. Chambers did not know anything about Ortiz's 22 disciplinary history, aside from the fact he was returning to school after having been suspended the 23 remainder of the fall 2005 semester. However, Ms. Chambers had knowledge neither of the other 24 two Defendants possessed – she knew Plaintiff's mother was specifically concerned that her 25 daughter did not know proper boundaries and therefore could easily be the victim of sexual abused
26 at the hands of male tutors in the ILS classroom. [Chambers Depo., 131:3-16.] Thus, the Court 27 finds there is a genuine issue of material fact as to whether Defendant Ms. Chambers knew or 28 should have known Ortiz would be a danger to Plaintiff.

1 iii. Were Defendants Deliberately Indifferent to the Known or Obvious
 2 Danger?

3 Although the Court believes this is a very close case, the Court concludes there are genuine 4 issues of material fact precluding summary adjudication on the question of whether Defendants 5 were deliberately indifferent to the known or obvious risk that Plaintiff would be harmed if Ortiz
 6 worked in the ILS classroom as a peer tutor. As clarified above, contrary to Defendants' argument
 7 in their motion, the Ninth Circuit does not require a plaintiff to demonstrate that the defendants' 8 conduct is "conscious shocking" or "gross negligence." Kennedy, 439 F.3d at 1064-65. The 9 question is whether the Defendants acted "with deliberate indifference to the known and obvious 10 danger." Id. at 1064.

11 Here, the facts when viewed in the light most favorable to Plaintiff are sufficient to 12 establish for summary adjudication purposes that all Defendants acted deliberately and 13 indifferently to the danger they created by assigning Ortiz as a peer tutor in the ILS classroom and 14 allowing him to continue to work with Plaintiff. Despite their knowledge that Ortiz had a history 15 of disciplinary problems, Defendants Mr. Jiminez and Ms. Skinner assigned Ortiz to work as a 16 peer tutor in the ILS classroom with students whom they knew were particularly vulnerable to 17 abuse. Defendant Ms. Chambers, despite knowing Ortiz was returning from having been 18 suspended, despite knowing Plaintiff was particularly vulnerable to abuse, and despite having been 19 told by Plaintiff's mother that she did not want male tutors working with her daughter, allowed 20 Ortiz to work one-on-one with Plaintiff without a sufficient level of supervision by an adult aide.

21 Based thereon, the Court finds there exists genuine issues of material fact precluding 22 summary adjudication of Plaintiff's claim under 42 U.S.C. § 1983 as against each of the Individual 23 Defendants sued in their individual capacities. Defendants' motion is DENIED.

24 3. Punitive Damages

25 Defendants also move for summary adjudication on Plaintiff's claim for punitive damages.
 26 Defendants acknowledge that punitive damages may be awarded upon a finding of liability under 27 42 U.S.C. § 1983 where the jury also finds the defendant's conduct was motivated by evil motive 28 or intent, or involves reckless or callous indifference to federally protected rights. Smith v. Wade,

1 461 U.S. 30, 56 (1983). Defendants, argue there is no evidence to suggest punitive damages would 2 be appropriate in this case.

3 The Court agrees. In her three sentence opposition to the Defendants' motion with regard 4 to punitive damages, Plaintiff conflates the showing required to establish her claim under 42
5 U.S.C. § 1983 with the standard for punitive damages. Plaintiff points to no evidence of record 6 demonstrating that any of the Defendants' conduct was motivated by "evil motive or intent, or 7 involves reckless or callous indifference to federally protected rights." Therefore, the Court 8 GRANTS Defendants' motion for summary adjudication of Plaintiff's claim for punitive damages.

9 Conclusion

10 For the reasons set forth herein, the Court:

- 11 1. DENIES Plaintiff's motion for a continuance under Fed. R. Civ. Proc. 56(f);
- 12 2. GRANTS Defendants' motion for summary adjudication of Plaintiff's claim under 13 42 U.S.C. § 1983 as to the District, Board, and individual Defendants in their 14 official capacities, because Plaintiff's claims are barred by the Eleventh 15 Amendment;
- 16 3. DENIES Defendants' motion for summary adjudication on the merits of Plaintiff's 17 claim under 42 U.S.C. § 1983 against the individual Defendants in their individual 18 capacities; and
- 19 4. GRANTS Defendants' motion for summary adjudication of Plaintiff's claim for 20 punitive damages.
